Objective

This invite-only event is one of a few opportunities the Taskforce on Federal Consumer Financial Law's (Taskforce) Members will have to hear from trade, consumer, and academics on what the group should include in the scope of their research and recommendations.

Background

The Taskforce on Federal Consumer Financial Law (Taskforce) will examine the existing legal and regulatory environment facing consumers and financial services providers and report to you its recommendations for ways to improve and strengthen consumer financial laws and regulations. The Taskforce will produce new research and legal analysis of consumer financial laws in the United States, focusing specifically on harmonizing, modernizing, and updating the enumerated consumer credit laws—and their implementing regulations—and identifying gaps in knowledge that should be addressed through research, ways to improve consumer understanding of markets and products, and potential conflicts or inconsistencies in existing regulations and guidance.

During today’s discussion, members of the Taskforce are interested hearing ideas and perspectives of trade, consumer, and academic stakeholders on modernization of the financial regulatory framework with respect to innovation, inclusion, and competition. You have agreed to give five-minute opening remarks, and then will excuse yourself from the meetings in order to preserve the independence of the Taskforce’s work and final product.
